OUR HISTORY

The Green Planet was nothing more than an idea in June 2005. Since its official launch as a platform for all age in June 2005. It has grown by leaps and bounds and now known to millions throughout the world. It was founded as a coalition of young people & international oriented organizations to take action on climate change. Green Planet considers its biggest achievement to be the personal transformation of each individual who participates in the network's activities as well as its contribution in bringing the climate debate to the mainstream.

The idea to start something new, something bold came about on noticing the lack of representation of Green Planet in the UNFCCC COP international climate negotiations in Bonn Germany, 2013. A country as large as India with one of the highest youth populations in the world was missing from the world forum of one of the most pressing issues of 21st century.

Green Planet is holding special consultative status in ECOSOC of UN, holding Observer Status in UNFCCC, IPCC and UNEP AS WELL.

OUR WORK

We aim to generate holistic awareness and empower ourselves as a generation of young people to take effective action against climate change at a local, state, national, and international level. We as future leaders and concerned citizens of the country must contribute to generating awareness and establishing consensus on what role India should play in the global debate and how it should address domestic issues of climate justice and adaptation.

It is a monumental effort but one with immense potential. The purpose of Green Planet is to bring the voice of Indian youth and all age on the global platform as South Asia is one of the most vulnerable regions affected by potentially catastrophic climate change and environmental issues.

With a country as large and diverse as India, establishing the necessary linkages is important to the formation of a holistic “Indian Youth Perspective on Climate Change” to support national & state governments in formulating people-friendly, achievable policies.
